Bidders want govt to sweeten AI deal further

Debt of nearly $3 bn has emerged as a key hurdle in Air India’s divestment

Rhik Kundu
rhik.k@livemint.com
NEW DELHI

Debt burden of nearly $3 billion that a potential bidder for Air India will have to shoulder has emerged as a key hurdle in the divestment of the loss-making national carrier, two people aware of the matter said.

They said the requirement that a potential buyer absorb ₹23,286.5 crore of the carrier’s total debt of ₹60,074 crore, has made it difficult to sell the airline in its second attempt, after the initial failure in 2018.

“At that time too, the airline’s debt pile emerged as the primary worry for bidders following which the government decided to transfer around ₹40,000 crore of the debt to Air India Assets Holding Ltd, a special purpose vehicle created for this,” said the first person cited above.

Kapil Kaul, South Asia CEO of CAPA-Centre for Aviation said he expects the deadline for submitting bids to be extended further at least to December.

“While the government is committed to Air India’s privatization and expects a successful outcome this time in spite of very challenging circumstances, it may have to sweeten the deal and make changes based on investor feedback,” Kaul said.

The deadline for submitting bids for the national carrier has already been extended several times due to the coronavirus pandemic ever since a fresh divestment process was initiated on 27 January.

The government had in January sought bids for selling its entire 100% equity in the airline, including Air India’s 100% stake in no-frill subsidiary Air India

The deadline for submitting bids for the national carrier is expected to be extended further amid investor concerns.

Express Ltd and 50% stake in Air India SATS Airport Services Pvt. Ltd.

Tata Sons, which controls the Tata group conglomerate, and had initially shown interest in bidding for Air India, is however unlikely to place a bid, said the second person.

“At present, it’s a very tough call for Tata group to bid for Air India. In fact, under the current scenario, it will be very difficult for any airline to bid for Air India considering how the sector has been adversely affected by the pandemic,” the person, who is close to the Tata group, said on condition of anonymity.

A spokesperson for the Tata group declined to comment.

Handing over control of Air India may help the carrier, which hasn’t made a profit since the merger with Indian Airlines in 2007, to post a financial turnaround. The path may, however, not be easy considering the global aviation market has been one of the worst-affected by the pandemic and could potentially be one of the last few sectors to stage a recovery.

In India, both domestic and international flights were suspended in March following the pandemic, causing massive losses for airlines. While domestic operations have resumed after a two-month suspension from 25 May in a calibrated manner, scheduled international flights remain suspended.

AP, UP get Centre’s clearance for additional borrowing linked to their reform initiatives

NEW DELHI

The central government has allowed Andhra Pradesh and Uttar Pradesh to raise an additional ₹2,525 crore and ₹4,851 crore of debt, respectively, linked to reforms initiatives undertaken by the states in the public distribution system (PDS) and for ease of doing business, the Union finance ministry said on Friday.

While Uttar Pradesh has been allowed to raise the extra amount from the market by rolling out “One Nation One Ration Card” scheme, Andhra Pradesh will have to carry out reforms on ease of doing business to raise additional debt, it said.

In September, Andhra Pradesh was also among the five states allowed to make additional borrowings linked to PDS reforms.

In May, the government had raised the borrowing limits of states from 3% of gross state domestic product (GSDP) to 5%, with riders. Of the two percentage points extra borrowing limit, states can raise 0.25% each for reforms linked to PDS, ease of doing business, to aid urban local bodies and utilities, and the power sector.

States were given 0.5% extra borrowing permission upfront without any condition and could avail it if they were able to achieve milestones on at least three reforms measures.

The riders, however, were criticized by a few states, including Kerala, which said that they will prove to be a hurdle in delivering a quick fiscal stimulus to tide over the economic crisis triggered by the covid-19 pandemic.

States could borrow up to ₹427,302 crore collectively by meeting the conditions. In the first batch, Andhra Pradesh, Telangana, Karnataka, Goa and Tripura, were given permission to raise ₹9,913 crore debt under the scheme.

To implement the “One Nation, One Ration Card” scheme, beneficiaries have to be biometrically identified and all fair price shops would have to be equipped with electronic points of sale devices. The food and public distribution department will assess the reform claims by states and recommend the release of the extra borrowing limit of 0.25% of GSDP, the finance ministry said.

Under the Centre’s initiative to improve business climate at the district level, a key requirement was to eliminate the “inspector raj”. States will also have to do away with certain licensing requirements for approving new businesses to set up shop. The Centre is also of the view that collection of reasonable fees with automatic non-discretionary renewal processes will help fast-track reforms.

‘E-way bills, GST receipts signal recovery’

Gireesh Chandra Prasad
gireesh.p@livemint.com
NEW DELHI

An increase in electronic bills for transporting goods nationwide as well as higher goods and services tax (GST) receipts collections in September were “affirmative signs of an economic recovery,” said finance secretary Ajay Bhushan Pandey.

The year-on-year growth of 4% in GST receipts to ₹95,480 crore last month is a signal that an economic recovery is on track, Pandey said in a statement late Thursday. “With the festive season coming in the next month, we are much confident of a better recovery in GST collections.”

E-way bills, or electronic permits, for transportation of goods, too, witnessed record growth. In September, over

In September, over 57.4 million e-way bills were generated, against the 57.1 million e-way bills in February.

57.4 million e-way bills were generated, nearly matching the 57.1 million e-way bills in February, prior to the lockdown, showed data available with GST Network, which provides technology support for administering GST.

India had in March implemented a stringent nationwide lockdown aimed at curbing the spread of covid-19, bringing goods movement to a complete halt and disrupting trade.

E-way bills are required for transporting goods of over ₹50,000 value both for intra- and inter-state supply. This allows officials to keep a tab on transactions without physical interference in the movement of goods.

Meanwhile, Wednesday saw a sudden spike in e-way bill generation. “On 30 September, almost 26.19 lakh e-way bills were generated which is the highest ever count so far in a single day. This is the third day this year when e-way bills have been generated to mark a record count. Before this, on 29 February, 25.19 lakh e-way bills were generated, while on 31 January, around 24.74 lakh e-way bills were generated,” Pandey said.

The number of e-way bills issued in September was 9.3% more than the year-earlier.

Pandey said some major industrial states have shown “very positive” growth percentage in GST collections, an indication of the economic recovery being on track.

ByteDance working to resolve US concerns over TikTok stake sale

Bloomberg
feedback@livemint.com

ByteDance Ltd is working with US regulators to resolve outstanding security concerns over its planned sale of a stake in music-video app TikTok, and the companies involved are bracing for the approval process to drag on past the November election, according to people familiar with the matter.

Oracle Corp., which is leading the bid to buy a stake in TikTok, is also still hashing out the fine-print terms of the deal, which two weeks ago received an endorsement “in concept” from US President Donald Trump but faces scepticism from others within his administration and from the Chinese government.

ByteDance is in discussions on a final proposal with the committee on foreign investment in the US, or Cfius, the regulatory body that must clear any agreement. Several issues remain unresolved, including questions about data security, Chinese ownership in the new TikTok Global and a possible $5 billion education fund. Trump has said that if a deal isn’t done before 12 November, TikTok will be shut down in the US, but it’s possible that deadline could be changed if negotiations are still going on into next month, people familiar said.

The process is going slowly in part because of the volume of details that need to be ironed out, said some of the people, who asked not to be identified discussing the private negotiations. What’s more, the fate of TikTok Global has slipped lower on the list of priorities for the president, who’s seeking to win approval for a new Supreme Court justice and focused on his campaign for re-election, some of the people said.

A representative from TikTok declined to comment, while Oracle didn’t immediately respond to a request for comment. Cfius doesn’t confirm, deny or comment on its work.

TikTok was forced to start talks for a deal by a pair of bans Trump issued in August on the grounds that ByteDance posed a national security risk, thrusting the app into the centre of the president’s confrontation with Beijing.

ByteDance is fighting the US administration’s orders while simultaneously trying to push a deal through. A federal judge temporarily blocked a proposed White House ban of TikTok from US app stores on 27 September, claiming the Trump administration overstepped its authority in demanding the removal.

The agreement on the table materialized last month and called for Oracle and Walmart Inc. to take minority stakes in TikTok Global, and for four of the company’s five board members to be US citizens. That proposal won out over a bid from Microsoft Corp. to purchase TikTok’s US assets outright.

Under the plan being discussed, all the board votes will be equally weighted, one person familiar with the matter said, meaning no single board member will have greater influence than others.

Walmart has said chief executive officer Doug McMillon will take one of those board seats. The retail giant is likely to have a more active role in TikTok’s products and features than some other investors, people familiar said. Walmart has touted “commercial agreements” with TikTok, and the two sides are discussing how to integrate Walmart and TikTok features into each other’s respective apps. Walmart declined to comment on the latest discussions.

Oracle, meanwhile, isn’t expected to take a board seat.

Still, some of the most basic aspects of the deal appear to be undecided. While Oracle and Walmart have said they will take a combined 20% stake in the new TikTok entity, Trump and Oracle have both asserted that the deal won’t move forward if the resulting company has Chinese involvement. ByteDance, meanwhile, says it plans to hold an 80% stake in the new company, and there are indications that the Chinese government will only approve a deal if ByteDance maintains a majority stake.

Wall Street’s big banks focus on small deals

Wall Street’s biggest banks traditionally shied away from getting their hands dirty advising on small mergers and acquisitions. Too much work for the modest fees, so they focused on the blockbuster deals.

But with the pandemic-induced slowdown in dealmaking this year, bankers who have been talking about embracing smaller clients for ages are finally doing it. They’re swooping in on smaller transactions—those of $500 million or less—winning assignments to an extent not seen in five years. And in so doing, they are elbowing out some lesser rivals that typically make their bread and butter advising smaller clients.

“When the larger deals are slow, people pick up the smaller deals,” said David Friedland, global head of mergers and acquisitions in the cross-markets team at Goldman Sachs.

In the first nine months of the year, Bank of America Corp., Citigroup Inc., Goldman Sachs Group Inc., JPMorgan Chase & Co. and Morgan Stanley advised on about $61 billion of announced transactions in the global small and midsize segment, according to data compiled by Bloomberg.

That gave them 9.2% of that market, their largest slice since 2015, and enough for the banks to dominate the advisory rankings.

It’s a big change from last year when mega-mergers ruled and big banks’ share of the small end of the market fell to just 7%. The top two spots on the 2019 league rankings were won by PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP and Rothschild & Co.

Now, while dealmaking has fallen almost 25% through 30 September, the volume of transactions valued at up to $500 million has seen drop by only 14%.
